PENNSYLVANIA: Emergency Medicine Faculty (Instructor Through Professor Level) - UPMC and University of Pittsburgh

UPMC and the University of Pittsburgh have full-time opportunities for emergency medicine residency-trained and board-certified or board-eligible candidates. UPMC's diverse faculty are widely recognized for excellence in research, teaching, and clinical care. Our three clinical sites provide tertiary and Level I trauma care to approximately 170,000 ED patients collectively each year, while training residents, fellows, and students. The Department of Emergency Medicine includes toxicology and hyperbaric medicine treatment programs, and we have multiple fellowships available. Career opportunities exist for academic clinicians, clinician-investigators, and clinician-educators. We have particular interest in candidates with ultrasound or other investigative interests that complement our current capabilities. Salary is commensurate with experience and duties. For further information, contact: Donald M. Yealy, MD, Chair, Department of Emergency Medicine, University of Pittsburgh Physicians, 3600 Meyran Ave., Suite 10028, Pittsburgh, PA 15260. The University of Pittsburgh is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer.

STANFORD

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

The Division of Emergency Medicine in the Department of Surgery at Stanford University seeks a Board Certified Clinician/Researcher to join the Division as an Assistant or Associate Professor in the Medical Center Line.

The major criteria for appointment for faculty in the Medical Center Line shall be excellence in the overall mix of clinical care, clinical teaching, scholarly activity that advances clinical medicine, and institutional service appropriate to the programmatic need the individual is expected to fulfill.

Faculty rank will be determined by the qualifications and experience of the successful candidate.

The successful applicant should have board certification in emergency medicine with an advanced degree and/or experience in clinical research. We are particularly interested in candidates who have a track record of excellence in research and experience in securing funding.

In addition to providing excellent clinical care, and teaching house staff and medical students, this new physician researcher will lead by example by writing grants and conducting research pursuant to his or her expertise. As such this person will also be expected to be an invaluable resource as a mentor for junior faculty, residents and medical students in the area of clinical research.

Applications will be reviewed beginning September 1st, 2012 and accepted until the position is filled.

Stanford University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty. It welcomes nominations of and applications from women and members of minority groups, as well as others who would bring additional dimensions to the university's research, teaching and clinical missions.
