

Acknowledgments for AJPM Volumes 40 and 41

Each December, the AJPM editors take a look back at the progress made by the Journal over the past year. It is with awe that we realize the number of people who have made a commitment to the preventive medicine and public health communities by participating in the production of each issue. Each published article has been through the hands of the authors, the reviewers, the editors, and the Elsevier production staff, and has been touched by literally scores of people in the process.

The people listed here have been integral to the process by acting as the peer reviewers, assuring that what is published is not only correct, but also current, novel, and a contribution to the medical literature. While the authors of the papers are recognized at the time of publication, the reviewers are not. So it is with great thanks and deep appreciation that we present this list of those reviewers who have taken time from their busy schedules to review articles for AJPM during the past year.
