This is a PDF file of an unedited manuscript that has been accepted for publication. As a service to our customers we are providing this early version of the manuscript. The manuscript will undergo copyediting, typesetting, and review of the resulting proof before it is published in its final form. Please note that during the production process errors may be discovered which could affect the content, and all legal disclaimers that apply to the journal pertain.

ACCEPTED MANUSCRIPT

- The concern for privacy of others explains disclosure of information about others.
- Agreeableness, extraversion, and opinion leadership define orientation toward others.
- Social norms do not have an influence on disclosure of information about others.
- Males are more concerned about others' privacy than females.
