TITLE PAGE

Title: This manuscript details a prospective, observational study investigating the predictive performance of different kidney function estimation equations in a lung transplant population. It is the most comprehensive study to date examining the utility of these equations in predicting nuclear glomerular filtration rate in individuals with end-stage lung disease wait-listed for, and post-, lung transplantation. It is the first study in lung transplant patients that includes pre- and post-transplant groups, anthropometric data and the relatively new biomarker cystatin C.
