

Author's Accepted Manuscript

Atrio-esophageal fistula formation with cryo-balloon ablation is most commonly related to the left inferior pulmonary vein

Roy M. John, Sunil Kapur, Kenneth A. Ellenbogen, Jayanthi N. Koneru

PII: S1547-5271(16)30936-5

DOI: <http://dx.doi.org/10.1016/j.hrthm.2016.10.018>

Reference: HRTM6898

To appear in: Heart Rhythm

Cite this article as: Roy M. John, Sunil Kapur, Kenneth A. Ellenbogen and Jayanthi N. Koneru, Atrio-esophageal fistula formation with cryo-balloon ablation is most commonly related to the left inferior pulmonary vein, Heart Rhythm, <http://dx.doi.org/10.1016/j.hrthm.2016.10.018>

This is a PDF file of an unedited manuscript that has been accepted for publication. As a service to our customers we are providing this early version of the manuscript. The manuscript will undergo copyediting, typesetting, and review of the resulting galley proof before it is published in its final citable form. Please note that during the production process errors may be discovered which could affect the content, and all legal disclaimers that apply to the journal pertain.

Atrio-esophageal Fistula Formation with Cryo-balloon Ablation is Most Commonly Related to the Left Inferior Pulmonary Vein

Roy M. John, MBBS, PhD*

Sunil Kapur, MD*

Kenneth A. Ellenbogen, MD

Jayanthi N. Koneru, MD

*Brigham and Women's Hospital, Boston, MA

VCU School of Medicine and the Medical College of Virginia Hospital, Richmond, VA

Running Title: Atrio-esophageal fistula and cryoballoon

Address for Correspondence:

Roy M. John, MD, PhD
Arrhythmia Section
Brigham and Women's Hospital
75 Francis Street
Boston, MA 02115
Tel: 857 307 1947
Fax: 857 307 1944

Conflict of Interest:

Roy M. John, MD – Research support from St Jude Medical and Biosense Webster

Sunil Kapur, MD – No disclosures

Kenneth A Ellenbogen, MD – Consulting fee and speaking honoraria from Medtronic

Jayanthi Koneru, MD – No disclosures

Download English Version:

<https://daneshyari.com/en/article/5603247>

Download Persian Version:

<https://daneshyari.com/article/5603247>

Daneshyari.com