To the editor,

Dear Sir,

Miss M. is a 42 year old married Yazidi woman who came to a consultation because of her recurrent fainting episodes. She left her village in Sinjar in 2014 when ISIS occupied the area and is now living in Sharia in an informal setting outside the main refugee camp. Although seemingly in a good mood, she starts by complaining of pain throughout her whole body, headaches and episodes of fainting whenever she cries heavily or gets angry. These symptoms
