Acknowledgements: This work would not have been possible without the assistance and collaboration of the institutional researchers at the two community colleges with whom we partnered. We are grateful for their insights and assistance. This work benefitted greatly from the thoughtful feedback of the seminar participants at California State University, Fullerton; NBER Labor Studies Program Meeting; the ASSA meetings; and the IZA Workshop on the Economics of Education. Rachel Baker received support from the Stanford Predoctoral Training Program in Quantitative Education Policy Research, funded by the Institute of Education Sciences (IES Award R305B090016). The opinions expressed here do not represent those of the funding agency. All errors are our responsibility.
