This is a PDF file of an unedited manuscript that has been accepted for publication. As a service to our customers we are providing this early version of the manuscript. The manuscript will undergo copyediting, typesetting, and review of the resulting proof before it is published in its final form. Please note that during the production process errors may be discovered which could affect the content, and all legal disclaimers that apply to the journal pertain.

Highlight

- We investigate leading by example with individual rewards and punishments in teams.
- Leading by example alone does not increase contributions in teams.
- Leadership does not reinforce the effect of rewards and punishments.
- Our results imply that in small teams, a leader may not always be necessary.
- Social forces among the peers may suffice for maintaining cooperation.
