Highlights

- Agro-neoliberalism is promoted through public-private alliances, novel techno-economic strategies and the hegemonic containment of critical reactions
- Brazilian agribusiness provides a paradigmatic opportunity to investigate the foundations and geographical specificities of agro-neoliberalism
- The frontier of neoliberal agribusiness in the Brazilian State of Mato Grosso has evolved due to flexible mechanisms of accumulation and regulation
- Areas where agribusiness is expanding, as in Mato Grosso, more clearly demonstrate the achievements, contradictions and failures of agro-neoliberalism
- The experience of Mato Grosso shows that this frontier of agro-neoliberalism it is in itself an economic, ecological and ethical frontier
