

Acknowledgment to Referees 2017

Robin S. Adams is an Associate Professor in the School of Engineering Education at Purdue University. She worked as a senior designer in industry and holds a Ph.D. in Education, an MS in Materials Science and Engineering, and a BS in Mechanical Engineering. Her research is in three interconnecting areas: cross-disciplinary thinking, acting, and being; design cognition and learning; and theories of change in transforming engineering education.
rsadams@purdue.edu

Silvia Barbero, Ph.D., is Assistant Professor at POLITO-DAD. She is the lecturer of “Product Environmental Requirements” at Design and Visual Communication degree and of “Systemic Design” at Systemic Design Master degree at POLITO. She is also responsible for the stage&job design curriculum and member of the H2020@polito Committee in Advanced manufacturing and processing. Her research mainly focuses on Systemic Design applied to agro-food and energy systems. She is the scientific coordinator of RETRACE project on the development of local and regional policies to move towards a circular economy, preventing waste being released into the environment. She has been coordinator also of regional projects (PACK, POR-FESR 2007–2013), and team leader of international projects (like in France, at Montauban, in Spain, at Lea-Artibai, in Mexico, at Ahuacotzingo). View her publications via <http://porto.polito.it/view/creators/Barbero=3ASilvia=3A016212=3A.html>.
silvia.barbero@polito.it

Deirdre Barron is an Associate Professor in the School of Design, Swinburne University of Technology, Australia. She has worked in design education for 15 years, the majority of teaching is design research methods at all levels of university studies. She also teaches Research Skills to Masters students at the College of I&D at Tongji University, China. Her areas of research publication include design research methods, doctoral education in design and communities of practice and interest.
dbarron@swin.edu.au

Dominique Bouchet is Chair Professor of International Marketing at the University of Southern Denmark and Adjunct Professor at the School of Creative Arts at James Cook University in Australia. He has held appointments in international economics, sociology, and social psychology. Bouchet’s interests span a wide area including epistemology, economics, sociology, philosophy, history, art, anthropology, semiotics, design, creativity, and markets as they relate to social change, cultural differences, cultures of consumption, education, and international relations. For his transdisciplinary research, Bouchet was awarded the Danish Researchers’ Prize bestowed by the association of university professors and researchers. Prof. Bouchet is a consultant for top-level management and marketing decisions for many European firms, and an invited speaker at many companies and organizations worldwide. Dominique Bouchet’s web site is: <http://bouchet.dk>.
dom@sam.sdu.dk

Martin Bunch, Ph.D., is a human geographer by training and is a Professor and Associate Dean (Research) in the Faculty of Environmental Studies at York University. He is interested in the transdisciplinary application of ecosystem approaches and complexity science to environmental problems - problems associated with high levels of complexity and uncertainty, and in which decision stakes are high. Currently, he is working in the emerging field of ecohealth (ecosystem approaches to human health and well-being).
bunchmj@yorku.ca

Giulia Calabretta is Assistant Professor in Strategic Value of Design at Faculty of Industrial Design Engineering, Delft University of Technology (Delft Netherlands). Giulia earned her Ph.D. from ESADE Business School

(Barcelona, Spain). Her research interests are in the area of innovation and design management. Currently her research is focused on understanding how design skills and methods can be effectively integrated into the strategy and processes of companies, with a particular interest on the role of designers in innovation strategy and early development. Her research has been published in journals including Organization Studies, Journal of Product Innovation Management, Journal of Business Ethics, Journal of Service Management, and Journal of Service Theory and Practice. She is also the co-author of the book Strategic Design: Eight Essential Practices Every Strategic Designer Must Master.
g.calabretta@tudelft.nl

Rama Chorpash is a generalist industrial designer. His benchmark products challenge him to not only express what role he plays in creating the useful and sublime but in articulating complex frameworks of practice. An associate professor with tenure Chorpash founded the MFA Industrial Design program at Parsons School of Design. His work has been exhibited in venues such as the New York Museum of Modern Art and the SF MoMA. His projects have been featured in Scientific America, The New Yorker, and The New York Times. In 2013 Elle Décor named Chorpash as one of the ten most influential people in design.
chorpasr@newschool.edu

Bo T. Christensen is Professor with special responsibilities in Creative Cognition at Copenhagen Business School. A cognitive psychologist by training, his works include both ethnographic studies of design practice and experimental studies of design cognition. His theoretical focus is on creative cognitive processes such as analogy, simulation, and incubation.
bc.marktg@cbs.dk

Eunki Chung is Professor of Interaction Design at SCAD. His research focuses on developing systems and stakeholders perspectives in design. His recent research/teaching investigates a service way of research through design, social interactions with autonomous systems, and design of assistive technology. Eunki conducted graduate and post-graduate studies at Carnegie Mellon University School of Design and Human-Computer Interaction Institute.
echung@scad.edu

Nigel Cross is Emeritus Professor of Design Studies, The Open University, UK, and is President of the Design Research Society. He is Editor-in-Chief of Design Studies, the leading international journal of design research. His own research interests are principally in understanding the nature of design thinking, and the development of design skill from novice to expert. His most recent book is Design Thinking: Understanding How Designers Think and Work (Berg, 2011).
nigel.cross@open.ac.uk

Katie McMillan Culp is Chief Learning Officer at the New York Hall of Science, where she leads teams that create and study experiences, exhibits, and media that help highly diverse audiences explore the practices and big ideas of science, and discover their own identities as scientists and engineers. Her research in formal and informal education settings has been funded by the National Science Foundation, the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, and the U.S. Department of Education. Dr. Culp is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Amherst College (1988) and holds a Ph.D. in developmental psychology from Teachers College, Columbia University (1999).
kculp@nysci.org

Alain Findeli is Honorary Full Professor from the School of Industrial Design of the University of Montreal (Canada) and Emeritus Professor of Design from the University of Nîmes (France) where he was invited in 2006 to develop research and education in social innovation through design. Founder of the Master's program in "Design & Complexity" in Montreal (1999) and co-founder of the Master's program in "Design-Innovation-Society" in Nîmes (2011), he also co-founded the international francophone design research community "Les Ateliers de la Recherche en Design" in 2006 and was a key player in the creation of PROJEKT, currently the only design research lab in social design in France (2016). alain.findeli@icloud.com

Kevin Hamilton is a Professor at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, where he holds appointments in the School of Art and Design and the program in Media and Cinema Studies, and serves as Senior Associate Dean in the College of Fine and Applied Arts. With a background in the arts, he has both exhibited and published scholarship on such topics as film's role in nuclear deterrence, bias in algorithmic systems, and histories of cybernetics. Kevin's administrative work lies largely in the realms of conflict transformation and infrastructure for interdisciplinary collaboration. kham@illinois.edu

Amy Ip has joined Fjord Hong Kong (part of Accenture Interactive) as Group Design Director in 2016. She was trained as an Interaction Designer and has over 20 years experience in bringing ideas to products for various markets. Before joining Accenture/Fjord, Amy was a Design Expert and Senior Director at Tencent Shenzhen Headquarter from 2011–2016; she was also the Chairlady for the Tencent Design Committee. Amy had previously worked for Microsoft (Redmond, USA) and Yahoo!(Hong Kong); some of her past projects include Qzone, QQ VIP Services, Tencent Cloud, Windows Live Messenger & Spaces, Windows Mobile Lync, etc. Amy had received her Bachelor Degree in Information and Decision Systems('94), and a Master Degree in Interaction Design('03) from Carnegie Mellon University, USA. uxsheji@qq.com

Peter Kelly, Ph.D., is Professor of Practice, High Growth Entrepreneurship, Aalto University. Peter Kelly is an award winning entrepreneurship educator and practitioner. Over the past 20+ years, he has worked with over 30,000 graduate students, executives and entrepreneurs in 26 countries. His personal forte is creativity inspired innovation, and he focuses on exploring the intersection between the disciplines of design and entrepreneurship. Peter has worked with a variety of clients in the communications, broadcasting, banking, retail and airline industries as well as governments. peter.kelly@aalto.fi

Stuart Kendall is a writer, editor, and translator working at the intersections of philosophy, ecology, visual culture, and design. His books include The Ends of Art and Design, Georges Bataille, and many edited or translated volumes, most frequently related to late modern trends in poetry, philosophy, and visual culture. He currently lives in the San Francisco Bay Area where he teaches at the California College of the Arts. skendall@cca.edu

Andrzej Klimczuk is an independent researcher and a social policy consultant at the Collegium of Socio-Economics at Warsaw School of Economics, Poland. His research focuses on gerontology, labor economics, public management, and social policy. He has more than 150 publications including 66 chapters in books and 18 chapters in 10 encyclopedias. His most recent publications include Social Capital of Old People on the Example of Białystok Residents (in Polish), Experts and Cultural Narcissism, Aging in the Social Space (co-authored with Ł. Tomczyk), Economic Foundations for Creative Ageing Policy (the two-volume set), and Generations, Intergenerational Relationships, Generational Policy (edited with K. Lüscher and M. Sanchez). klimczukandrzej@gmail.com

Vijay Kumar is a professor at the Illinois Institute of Technology's Institute of Design in Chicago. He is a world-renowned consultant, author, coach, and advisor to organizations for growing innovation culture. With over 30 years of experience, Kumar is an expert on using structured methods to conceive reliable human-centered innovations and strategic plans. He has consulted to global organizations like Autodesk, Godrej, McDonald's, Motorola, Pfizer, P&G, SC Johnson, Steelcase, Target, Texas Instruments, and T-Mobile, among many others. Kumar is a frequent speaker and is the author of the best-selling book, "101 Design Methods: A Structured Approach for Driving Innovation in Your Organization." He is an Honorary Senior Fellow of the Design Futures Council. vijay@id.iit.edu

Yongqi Lou, Ph.D., is Professor, Dean of the College of Design and Innovation at Tongji University. He is a visiting professor at the University of Gothenburg in Sweden, Aalto University in Finland, and Politecnico di Milano in Italy. He serves as a Member of the Board of Directors of World Design Organization (WDO, former ICSID), Vice President of China Industrial Design Association, International Coordination Member of DESIS Network. He is also the Founding Executive Editor of She Ji: The Journal of Design, Innovation, and Economics (Elsevier), the Editorial Board Member of Design Issues (MIT Press), and Journal of Visual Art Practice (Taylor & Francis). Lou's main research focuses on social innovation and sustainable design. He plays an active role in promoting interdisciplinary innovation and sustainable design education, research, and practice internationally. His latest book is Design Harvests: An Acupunctural Design Approach Toward Sustainability (Mistra Urban Futures, 2012). louyongqi@tongji.edu.cn

Ding-Bang Luh, Chair Professor, College of Creative Design, Asia University, Taiwan and Distinguished Professor, School of Art and Design, Guangdong University of Technology, China. He received his Ph.D. in Design from Illinois Institute of Technology, USA in 2000. He has been teaching at National Cheng Kung University for 25 years. In 2006, he established the first postgraduate program on Cultural and Creative Industries in Taiwan and in 2013, he published the first CCI journal in Asia, namely International Journal of Cultural and Creative Industries. In 2015, he was elected as President of Chinese Institute of Design, and in 2017 he received the title of National "Thousand Talents Plan" expert in humanity and art category. dingbangluh@gmail.com

Tim Marshall is the Provost and Chief Academic Officer of The New School and a tenured associate professor. Previously, he served as Dean of Parsons School of Design and held a number of academic leadership positions at the University of Western Sydney, including Chair of the School of Design. He has served as a consultant to many academic institutions and been a visiting critic at the Köln International School of Design and guest professor at the China National Academy of the Arts, Shanghai Institute of Design. Tim has written and lectured extensively on design research and design education. He was co-editor, with Michael Erlhoff, of Design Dictionary: Perspectives in Design (2007), the first publication of its kind in print. Early in his career, Tim was a professional photographer. He received his education at the City Art Institute and College of Fine Arts at the University of New South Wales, Australia. marshalt@newschool.edu

Sharon Matthias MSc, MBA is the principal provocateur in her consulting firm, Matthias Inc: Connecting for Innovation, supporting leaders committed to a journey of public sector innovation. Her clients know she'll offer a completely different lens on any societal issue, and bring her systemic innovation design toolkit to framing whole system strategies that align with their context and goals. In co-crafting the journey to their desired future, Sharon contributes her extensive learning experience in public sector policy design and implementation as a "Thinking Partner" rather than simply expert or facilitator. Through the non-profit Innovation Platform for Flourishing Societies, she supports leaders engaging in whole-of-society collaborative strategies. sharon@innovationplatform.com

Download English Version:

<https://daneshyari.com/en/article/7431048>

Download Persian Version:

<https://daneshyari.com/article/7431048>

Daneshyari.com