

Hypocomplementemic Urticarial Vasculitis Syndrome with Crescentic Glomerulonephritis: Case Report and Review of Literature

Sohail Abdul Salim M.D.¹, Tauqeer Yousuf M.D.², Asha Patel, M.D.², Tibor Fülöp M.D.,^{2*} and Mohit Agarwal M.D.¹

¹Department of Internal Medicine, Division of Nephrology and ²Department of Medicine, Division of Hospital Medicine, University of Mississippi Medical Center, Jackson, Mississippi

Short Title: Urticarial vasculitis and crescentic glomerulonephritis

*Corresponding author: Tibor Fülöp, M.D.

Department of Medicine, Division of Nephrology, University of Mississippi Medical Center. 2500 North State Street, Jackson, Mississippi 39216-4505

Tel: 601 260-3141; fax: (844) 286-7409. E-mail: tiborfulop.nephro@gmail.com

Present address: FMC Extracorporeal Life Support Center - Fresenius Medical Care Hungary; Medical and Health Science Center, University of Debrecen Nagyerdei krt. 98, 4032 Debrecen, Hungary

Disclosures and Conflict of Interest Statement:

The authors alone are responsible for the content and writing of the paper. Dr. Tibor Fülöp currently is an employee of the Fresenius Medical Care Hungary; the rest of the authors have no disclosures or conflict of interest to report. This study did not receive any research funding.

Abstract

Hypocomplementemic urticarial vasculitis syndrome (HUVS) is a rare autoimmune disease characterized by multiple organ system involvement, including renal disease, with low complement levels. We report the case of a 31-year-old female who presented with non-specific symptoms including fatigue, diarrhea, macular rash and abdominal

Download English Version:

<https://daneshyari.com/en/article/8651817>

Download Persian Version:

<https://daneshyari.com/article/8651817>

Daneshyari.com