ON THE COVER

First sacral nerve and midsacral promontory. The impetus for this presacral space dissection/study was a patient with right gluteal and posterior thigh/leg pain that began 2-3 years after combined sacrocolpopexy and rectopexy. The authors examined the proximity of the sacral fixation site for mesh to the first sacral nerve root.

SYSTEMATIC REVIEWS

527 Factors influencing repeated teenage pregnancy: a review and meta-analysis

Joemer C. Maravilla; Kim S. Betts; Camila Couto e Cruz; Rosa Alati

Evidence suggests a link between poor obstetric outcomes, depression, school discontinuation, increased partner support, and the nonuse of contraceptives and a greater risk of repeated pregnancy among adolescents.

CLINICAL OPINION

546 The impact of uterine immaturity on obstetrical syndromes during adolescence

Ivo Brosens; Joanne Mutter; Caroline E. Gargett; Patrick Puttemans; Giuseppe Benagiano; Jan J. Brosens

The high incidence of obstetrical disorders in very young mothers reveals the importance of uterine maturation during adolescence in accommodating a deeply invading hemochorial placenta.

GYNECOLOGY

564 Effect of remote cesarean delivery on complications during hysterectomy: a cohort study

Susanne Hesselman; Ulf Högberg; Maria Jonsson

Previous cesarean delivery is associated with an increased risk of complications during hysterectomy; however, the risk is attributable only partly to the presence of adhesions.
