

Author's Accepted Manuscript

Arthroscopic Superior Capsular Reconstruction:
Indications and Outcomes

Matthew P. Noyes, Patrick J. Denard

PII: S1060-1872(17)30069-2
DOI: <http://dx.doi.org/10.1053/j.otsm.2017.10.005>
Reference: YOTSM50615

To appear in: Operative Techniques in Sports Medicine

Cite this article as: Matthew P. Noyes and Patrick J. Denard, Arthroscopic Superior Capsular Reconstruction: Indications and Outcomes, Operative Techniques in Sports Medicine, <http://dx.doi.org/10.1053/j.otsm.2017.10.005>

This is a PDF file of an unedited manuscript that has been accepted for publication. As a service to our customers we are providing this early version of the manuscript. The manuscript will undergo copyediting, typesetting, and review of the resulting galley proof before it is published in its final citable form. Please note that during the production process errors may be discovered which could affect the content, and all legal disclaimers that apply to the journal pertain.

Arthroscopic Superior Capsular Reconstruction: Indications and Outcomes

Matthew P. Noyes, MD

Southern Oregon Orthopaedics

Medford, Oregon, USA

Noyes48@aol.com

2780 E. Barnett Road, Medford, Oregon, 97504

“No Conflict exists for this author”

Patrick J. Denard, MD

Southern Oregon Orthopaedics

Medford, Oregon, USA

Department of Orthopaedics and Rehabilitation, Oregon Health and Science University

Portland, Oregon, USA

Dr. Denard is a consultant for Arthrex and receives royalties from the company

He is on the editorial board for Arthroscopy and The American Journal of Orthopedics

Keywords: Superior capsule, arthroscopic, reconstruction, massive, irreparable, rotator cuff

Download English Version:

<https://daneshyari.com/en/article/8801864>

Download Persian Version:

<https://daneshyari.com/article/8801864>

Daneshyari.com