We thank discussants Shane Johnson (2012 Lone Star Finance Conference), Stuart Gillan (9th Annual Conference on Corporate Finance, Washington University in St. Louis, 2012), David Erkens (23rd Annual Conference on Financial Economics and Accounting, USC, 2012), Lixiong Guo (2013 FIRS Conference), Dalida Kadyrzhanova (2013 SFS Cavalcade), John Core (2014 Annual Georgia State University CEAR/Finance Symposium), Mireia Gine (2014 European Finance Association Annual Meeting), Kristina Minnick (2014 EFMA Annual Conference), Shinya Tsujimoto (2014 FMA Asian Conference), Abudy Meni (2014 EUROFIDAI Conference), Rik Sen (2015 HKUST Finance Symposium), Florian Peters (2016 Erasmus Workshop on Corporate Governance and Executive Compensation), Katharina Lewellen (2017 AFA Meetings), participants at those conferences and at the, Arizona State University, Chinese University of Hong Kong, Erasmus University of Rotterdam, Temple University, Texas Christian University, University of Amsterdam, University of Louisville, University of Tennessee, and University of Utah for helpful comments. We owe a special debt to the editor (Wayne Guay) and to a particularly assiduous and constructive referee. The authors are grateful to Incentive Lab (now ISS Incentive Lab), formerly a Scottsdale, Arizona compensation data and science firm, for generously supporting collection of data on vesting provisions and for providing additional data. The analysis and conclusions in this paper are those of the authors and have been formulated independently of the views of Incentive Lab. Bettis was founder of Incentive Lab, and both Bettis and Coles formerly served as consultants to ISS Incentive Lab.
